

NEW QUARTERS FOR CIA

World Today at 5:05 P.M. over WOL (Washington) and the MBS Network:

JOHN SCOTT: "America's cloak and dagger arm came out of the shadows into the bright sunlight, which bathed Washington today, as President Eisenhower laid the cornerstone for a new 16 million-dollar building which will house our super secret service, the CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY, which is directed by Allen Dulles, brother of the late Secretary of State.

"Until now the CIA has occupied space in the Pentagon, but in recent years it has grown so rapidly and is so important to our defense, that separate quarters were deemed advisable. All of us -- children, teenagers and adults -- are fascinated with the exploits, the real and fictional, of spies and counter spies. They always make exciting subjects for plays and books, radio, TV shows, movies and short stories.

"The lives of our men who work at this day in and day out, are by necessity shrouded in secrecy, and every once in a while a story comes out which makes us realize that there is more fact than fiction in the glamorized stories of their exploits. Who can forget Herb Philbrick, who led three lives, or the dual life of movie producer Boris Morros.

"President Eisenhower, at the cornerstone laying ceremonies took cognizance of the unsung roles the men of the CIA play."

EISENHOWER: "By its very nature the work of this Agency demands of its members the highest order of dedication, ability, trustworthiness and selflessness, to say nothing of the finest type of courage whenever needed. Success cannot be advertised, failure cannot be explained. In the work of Intelligence, heroes are undecorated and unsung, -- often even among their own fraternities.

"Their inspiration is rooted in patriotism. Their reward can be little, except the conviction that they are performing a unique and indispensable service for their country, and the knowledge that America needs and appreciates their efforts. I assure you this is indeed true."
